

I have stayed in many luxury hotels all over the world. There is no doubt that The Willcox is offering what “standard” luxury hotels can’t offer ... the feeling of being home. □ —Guest

---

The Willcox ... nestled in the heart of thoroughbred horse country ... was a favorite haunt of the Astors, Vanderbilts, Whitneys and Harrimans. Most of the guest accommodations feature high ceilings, fireplaces, period antiques, feather beds and plush baths ... Rocking chairs line the front porch ... A small exercise room and day spa round out the offerings. —Andrew Harper Hideaway Report “Best of the United States

---

Guests return to The Willcox, where time slows down to a more relaxed pace- they’ll find a rocking chair for resting their day-trip bones, a guestroom spilling over with modern-day comforts, and a hearty helping of Southern hospitality. —Home & Garden Magazine

---

---

The Willcox recalls an age when times were simpler but the pleasures of the season were celebrated with flair. —The Atlanta Journal-Constitution

---

What I loved most, other than my huge, positively addictive bed, was just going for a walk around that lovely little town and then returning to the hotel. Stepping inside the foyer, every time it took my breath away a little, the high ceilings, the long couches, the beautiful antiques. Like coming back home, to the kind of Southern home I've always wanted. The staff remembered my name and what I like to drink from the last time I was here. The food was close to divine. There's not another place like this. —Guest

---